

Cathryn Berger Kaye, M.A.

Are you interested in learning innovative ways to engage students in standards-based classroom instruction?

Cathryn Berger Kaye, M.A., is a former classroom teacher and a National Service Learning Consultant. She works with state departments of education, university faculty and students, school districts, and classroom teachers on a variety of education issues such as service learning, civic responsibility, student leadership, and respectful school communities. *

The Workshop: August 31, 2005

In all workshops settings, service learning links to literature and current issues relevant to local educational concerns are addressed.

Service Learning as a Teaching Methodology...*Hands on workshops for teachers and administrators, including specific applications within the existing core curriculum. ***

The Literature-Service Learning Connection...*A hands on workshop to identify and recognize the wealth of opportunities offered through fiction and nonfiction to motivate and engage youth in service. ***

Creating Curriculum Connections...*Language arts, science, social studies, arts, math—find connections between content, skills and service. ***

Words that Hurt, Words that Heal, Words that Lead to Social Action...*Our schools and communities must address the bullying, teasing, and violence affecting our students. Using service learning as a lens, we find construct viable alternatives and encourage youth leadership and action. ***

In order for this workshop to be offered to LTUSD, sufficient teacher interest must be expressed by the end of this school year. Please contact your principal immediately so that he/she can let Assistant Superintendent Barbara Davis know of your interest.
